I. Executive Summary

Attendee Evaluation Results & Assessment

Ninety-one adults and sixty-four children registered for the 2018 Health and Safety Fair, however the total number of attendees is estimated to be ten to twenty percent higher than the official registered attendees. Of the attendees who had previously attended a Parkside Health and Safety Fair, sixty percent reported continued use of resources that they had accessed through previous health fairs. Around ninety percent of surveyed attendees rated their overall experience at the health fair as “excellent” or “good.” Attendees reported benefiting from the fair through the friendliness and willingness of vendors to educate attendees, the variety of vendors, and the availability of free health care screenings.

Vendor Evaluation Results & Assessment

Thirty-five vendors attended the 2018 Health and Safety Fair. These vendors ranged from the local health department to an educational agency (see Appendix F: Acknowledgements). More than ninety-percent of vendors rated their overall experience at the health fair as “good,” “very good,” or “excellent.” Around forty-five percent of vendors rated the number of attendees visiting their booth as “better than expected,” while around seventy percent rated the number of attendees signing up for services as “good” or better. Ninety-six percent of vendors are interested in attending future Parkside Health and Safety Fairs. Vendors reported the positive aspects of the fair included the number of attendees, staff assistance, and organization.

Volunteer Evaluation Results & Assessment

Twenty-four individuals volunteered at the 2018 Health and Safety Fair (see Appendix F: Acknowledgements). One-hundred percent of volunteers rated their overall experience as “good,” “very good,” or “excellent.” Eighty percent of volunteers rated the length of the volunteer assignments as “appropriate.”

Committee Evaluation Results & Assessment

Fourteen individuals served on the 2018 Health and Safety Fair Planning Committee (see Appendix F: Acknowledgements). One-hundred percent of committee members rated their experience as “good” or “excellent,” and eighty-three percent of members found the committee meetings were “very productive.”

II. Introduction

In order to accurately assess the 10th Annual Health & Safety Fair from a number of varying perspectives and gain a better understanding of the long term impact of the health fair on community residents, four different surveys were distributed to attendees, vendors, volunteers, and planning committee members. Information on past attendance, continued use of health fair resources, additional unaddressed health needs, and suggestions for improvement were addressed through the evaluations. Past evaluations have focused on improvement of growth, structure, and content of the event. This year's surveys maintain focus on these areas, however, they also address agency-resident relationships in the years following previous fairs, and evaluate how effective the event is in creating sustainable, long term options for health care resources and education. Continued annual distribution of surveys in this format will allow for Friends of Parkside to have a more complete picture over time of the demographics and needs of health fair attendees, vendors, volunteers, and planning committee members, to improve the efficiency of the organization in addressing those needs.

III. Background to Health & Safety Fair

The Annual Parkside Community Health and Safety Fair provides health resources and networking opportunities for residents of the Villages at Parkside (TVP) and the surrounding community. The purpose of the Annual Parkside Community Health and Safety Fair is to highlight and provide solutions to the community's current health, food, and safety issues. A 2009 needs assessment of residents conducted by University of Michigan School of Public Health graduate students identified health problems such as diabetes, heart disease, arthritis, and a lack of fresh fruits, vegetables, and physical activities. Each year, Friends of Parkside's Annual Health and Safety Fair invites relevant agencies and organizations to bring resources such as free health screenings, health consultations, networking opportunities, useful literature, health-related giveaways, and workshops, to the Parkside Community to help provide solutions for the community's health issues.

IV. Evaluation of the Health & Safety Fair

Four surveys were administered, either through paper or an online Google survey, to evaluate the impact of the event and receive general feedback about the experience.

Attendee Survey

The attendee survey was dispersed via one medium:

- A paper survey given to attendees at the event

The survey evaluated the attendees' experience at the event as a whole and gauged opinion on the variety and scope of the resources available. It also sought to record which attendees were new to the event, which were Villages at Parkside residents, and which had benefited from the resources provided at previous fairs.

Vendor Survey

The vendor survey was dispersed via two mediums:

- A paper survey given to vendors at the event; and
- A digital version of the survey emailed to vendors via Google Forms if they had not completed the paper survey on the day of the event.

The purpose of the vendor survey was to assess vendor perception of the event and understand the experience of each vendor to better know how to address their needs for future health fairs.

Volunteer Survey

The volunteer survey was dispersed via one medium:

- A paper survey given to the volunteers at the conclusion of the event

The purpose of the volunteer survey was to evaluate the volunteers' experience at the event and gauge opinion on the organization of the event, the volunteer roles and assignments, and the length of the volunteer assignments.

Planning Committee Survey

The planning committee survey was dispersed via one medium:

- A paper survey given to the planning committee at the last meeting before the health fair

The purpose of the committee survey was to understand how productive the planning committee meetings were, and to gauge what needs to be improved for future planning committees.
